PRESS RELEASE

New ALPINE office building in Steyr

ALPINE's Steyr branch opened its new office building in the Steyr Business Park, celebrating with prominent construction and political leaders. All of the company's administrative activities are consolidated in the new four-story building. The innovatively designed office not only offers employees a state-of-the-art workplace but also has a spacious interior design. Staff members can also use the garden. "The Steyr branch made good progress during the last few years and the construction of the new building a logical consequence, combining all office operations in one building," says Karl Gruber, responsible managing director at ALPINE Bau GmbH. The building was designed by Hertl, a renowned team of architects from Steyr. "The practical, timeless design resembling a die offers a modern work environment for our staff as well as a private park for relaxation," adds Ing. Josef Mayrhofer, Manager of ALPINE's Upper Austrian branch, and Ing. Markus Mitterschiffthaler, Division Manager at ALPINE Hochbau Steyr, pleased with the new office building. ALPINE Upper Austria, currently employing a workforce of around 1150, is one of the big employer in this region.

The Mayor of Steyr, Gerald Hackl, bestowed accolades on the successful branch during the opening ceremony. Franz Schillhuber, Member of the State Government, and Mag. Johann Singer, Member of Parliament, praised the outstanding development of the construction business in the region. Nearly 200 visitors came to admire the modern office complex. A lively program by the entertainer and cabaret artist, Dr. Roman Szeliga, entitled "Humor in the Business" was offered in an extraordinary party location in front of the office building – in a tent shaped like a hemisphere with a height of ten meters. Multimedia effects also accompanied the exquisite Flying Dinner. The evening was hosted by the popular TV anchor, Miriam Hie, accompanied by the "Bodo and Band" jazz band.
